His Reformation, Thrilling Story of Western Holdup. Here is a picture that cannot fall to interest every person who is fortunate enough to see it, being a thrilling story of the wild and woully west. A western bandit, tired of the life, resolves to reform, but it results in being a difficult job, as every place he applies for work his past life is brought to life and he is refused a position. He sarks a country town on Sunday morning and decides to enter church, but is refused admission, whereupon his fre is aroused and he determines to return to his old life. He accordingly prepares to make one of his sensational holdups and is successful, compelling the occupants of a stage coach to descend from their lofty seats upon the old-fashioned stage coach and with hands upraised rifles their pocked in the excitement and she is demurely seated on the coach and being compalled to dismount, proves to be the bandit's mother who is on the way to see her wayward son and try to make his life a better one, it being mediess to say that the subtle power she possesses is sufficient to produce His Reformation.

A magnificent Biograph picture is also presented, it being one of those art films that besides carrying a superb story is pictorially perfect in every detail.

For her concert song for the remainder of the week Miss Wolcott will sing the calebrated Swiss Echo Song, a number of great difficulty, and is one of her star numbers.

Made the Subject of a Sermon by Paster of Baptist Church at South Nor-

South Norwalk Baptist

At the South Norwalk Baptist church, Sunday evening, Rev. Hugh B. Carpenter spoke on The Thoughtlessness of People Toward the Local Telephone Girls.

Rev. Mr. Carpenter held that the local telephone girl is simply a medium between the impatience of the telephone user and the cause for this impatience. He went on to recount the perience where a man had called him up from New York, giving central the number which had been given to him months previous to that time. In the meantime, Mr. Carpenter's telephone number had changed and the caller fafled to get him, as a neighbor had the old humber. Immediately the man from New York opened up a rapid fire of abuse at the central operator for giving him the wrong number, disgracing his noble man, in the heat of his anger. The man himself was to blame for not taking the time to look up the number in the book, and ascertaining that he was right himself.

heard a woman, who had failed to get the central operator, say that she sup-posed the girl was busy making her Christmas fancy work, rather than at-ending to her duties.

There is no class of acopie in the There is no class of people in the world who are forced to put up with as much abuse and still not be responsible for the acts which are laid to them, as the telephone girl. Every girl, who works eight hours a day at this task answers 1,500 calls, approximately. How much fancy work can also do and perform this feat? Put
